STATEMENT OF CONFIDENTIALITY

Information about patients and their medical history and/or condition is a private matter. It is each provider and employee's responsibility to keep this information confidential. The organization has the right to discharge or suspend privileges for an individual for failure to keep information confidential.

During your employment and after termination (whether voluntary or involuntary), you shall retain in strictest confidence all confidential matters, including without limitation, patient medical histories, charts, test results, and general medical condition.

Similarly, no employee, except a physician or his/her designee may knowingly release or improperly disclose confidential information, either within or outside the practice without proper authorization.

I have read and understand the foregoing requirements involving confidentiality.
